08 · Fresh F: your new artwork

Something changes along the way. Create a small artwork that communicates your own version of that idea. Choose available materials and processes. Keep your first component and make one purposeful change; describe what you used and why. Share or display only if you choose.

Make a first component, then try your own chosen change and give a reason before examples or feedback. If you stop after the first bit, the revision stays open; later help is recorded separately.

Use usual materials, exact directions or a named plan. No completed composition, mood, shape count, ending or actual sharing is required.
